At the request of clients, Patricia Kelly has also devised a number of courses to help busy professionals make the most of their communications opportunities.

They include writing courses, training for press officers and presentation training for clients involved in boardroom negotiations and conference speaking.

"An excellent professional with experience..¦very helpful material and exercises, really relevant for our work"

European Parliament official, course evaluation, November 2009